J. Jpn. Bot. 88: 195 (2013)Kanchi N. GANDI: Botanical Nomenclature Course in India

Harvard University Herbaria, Harvard University, Cambridge, MA00000 USA

A Botanical Nomenclature Course workshop was jointly organized by the Botanical Survey of India (BSI) and ENVIS Centre on Floral Diversity-BSI in Kolkata from 11th to 13th January 2013 at Kolkata. This workshop was the first of its kind organized in India. Dr. Kanchi N. Gandhi (Senior Nomenclatural Registrar, Harvard University Herbaria, USA) was the Course Director; Dr. Paramjit Singh (Director, BSI) was the Course Convener, and Dr. P. Lakshminarasimhan (Scientist 'D', BSI) was the Course Coordinator. The BSI botanist late Dr. Mithilesh K. Pathak was helpful in organizing the workshop. There were 96 participants [51 from BSI and 45 from outside BSI]. On the inaugural day, Dr. Lakshminarasimhan welcomed the gathering and outlined the course program. Prof. P. K. Mukherjee (Calcutta University), Dr. Paramjit Singh, Dr. D. K. Singh (Scientist 'F', BSI), and Mr. R. L. Mitra [Scientist (Retd.), BSI] gave talks. Dr. Gandhi's lectures, which covered the basics of the newly published Melbourne Code, were spread over the three days. In the concluding function on 13th January, certificates were distributed to all the participants. Valedictory remarks were delivered by: Dr. R. K. Chakraverty (Additional Director (Retd.), BSI), Dr. K. N. Gandhi, Dr. P. Lakshminarasimhan, Prof. G. G. Maity (Retd; Kalyani University), Prof. N. D. Paria (Calcutta University), Dr. D. K. Singh, and Dr. Paramjit Singh.
